I When we come to visit Canterbury Cathedral, we find that there is so much to talk about that it seems as if the stories connected with it would fill a hook of themselves. It is the most interesting of all our Cathedrals, although I think that Winchester follows hard on its heels; and in one way it is unique, for, as you know, it is the Mother-Cathedral of the great Church of England, for the Archbishop of Canterbury ranks first among all Anglican Bishops, whether at home or in our Colonies; and when difficulties arise in the Church, - not only in England, hut in those far-off lands, which cannot be settled by the Bishops and clergy living there - it is to the Archbishop of Canterbury that they look for advice and aid.
