Not illustrated. 1906 Excerpt: .this, and particularly in view of the courses which have for many years existed in most of the Training Colleges, a certain special regard must be given to this aspect of mstruction and training, in the case of the Natural Science portions of the curriculum. It is in this branch of study that the student can in some ways learn most effectively to depend in some measure upon his own powers, and discover that he need not take everything unverified and on trust upon the statement of text books or lecturers. For by wisely planned and supervised laboratory work the student may be brought into immediate touch with the facts of nature, and learn to find some things out for himself, and to form conclusions upon the results of his own observations. For these reasons the student s work in science should be so arranged that...
